

Craig Henderson is a rising star, judging by his lead performance in new British rom-com Making Waves. This represents a big screen breakthrough for the Edinburgh born actor who is also appearing in Say Sorry at the Fringe's Venue C until Monday. It's about a group of disparate ham radio enthusiasts who become close friends on the air-waves but exaggerate who they are on the assumption they'll never meet. It premieres tonight at Edinburgh's National Museum in Chambers Street.